A Big Day for Baseball:

A Magic Tree House Adventure

Based upon the book by
Mary Pope Osborne
Adapted for the stage by

Will Osborne, Jenny Laird & Randy Courts

PLAY BALL! Jack and Annie aren't great baseball players . . . yet! Then Morgan the librarian gives them magical baseball caps that will make them experts. They just need to wear the caps to a special ballgame in Brooklyn, New York. The magic tree house whisks them back to 1947!

When they arrive, Jack and Annie find out that they will be batboys in the game—not ballplayers. What exactly does Morgan want them to learn? And what's so special about this game? They only have nine innings to find out!

Activities

• Setting The Scene

As a class, use a map to locate Brooklyn, New York, and ask them to imagine what life might have been like in 1947.

• Discussion Questions

What lesson do this story teach about American history? Is there a moral? What from the story makes you think that?

• Design a Backdrop

If Jack and Annie were in Brooklyn, what would the buildings and decorations behind them look like?

• Build A Story

Read students a Magic Treehouse story, ask the students to illustrate the action as it occurred in the story.

• Friendly Letter Writing

We love to hear from you at Orlando Shakes! So write us a letter to let us know what you thought!
